MR. MAYO'S MUSIC.

Three Big Meetings Held
Sunday and Will Continue
All This Week.

Large congregations greeted Mr. Wright at every service at Westminster church Sunday, at night every available space was occupied and those who came late were unable to find seats. With Miss Nourse accompanying and Mr. Mayo directing the choir the music continued to find favor with the large numbers present. Never was Mr. Mayo's voice better than in his solo at the morning service. At night, his solo, "Abide With Me," brought a hush to the entire audience. Perhaps the crowning feature of the music of the day was the duet of Mr. Mayo and Mr. Wright at the night service when they sang again, "Art Thou Weary, Art Thou Languid."

Mr. Wright's sermon at the morning service from the text, "Woe to them that are at ease in Zion," was another strong appeal and tender warning to the people of God to re-consecrate and re-dedicate themselves to Him and to arouse to lives of usefulness in seeking the salvation of sinners. The preacher never fails to emphasize the necessity of individual church member deciding his relation to God in the surrender of himself to Him.

In the afternoon the church was well filled with young people to hear a sermon from the text, Rev. 3:20, "Behold I stand at the door and knock." It was an earnest appeal to the old as well as the young to open their hearts to Him who stood seeking entrance to their hearts, a King, a Saviour, a Friend. His appeal brought several to the front with whom the personal workers of the church engaged in earnest con-

INSPECTION OF SOLDIER BOYS

Examining Board Headed by Col. Jouett Henry Comes To-Night.

IN APPLE PIE ORDER.

Rest of the Officers Who Must Undergo Mental and Physical Examination.

The Board of officers appointed by the Governor to inspect all companies and examine all officers in the Kentucky State Guard, will hold a meeting here today to examine the officers stationed in this city and inspect Co. D.

The board is composed of Col. Jouett Henry, commander of the 3rd Regiment, as president; Col. W. N. Hughes and Col. Chas. D. Clay, retired army officer on the Governor's staff; Maj. A. McLean Moffatt, of the Inspector General's Department, and Capt. Robt. K. Keigel, 1st Infantry, as recorder.

Such an examination of the guard has never before been made and the officers to be examined have been reviewing on the tactics and regulations for several weeks past, like school students trying for their diplomas.

This examination is made with the view of giving formal commissions to all who are entitled to them and the grade obtained will be a permanent record in the Adjutant General's office at Frankfort.

The officers living in Hopkinsville who will be called upon to answer the questions and be examined mentally and physically are:

Maj. C. H. Tandy, on Brigade Staff.

Lieut. Lawson B. Flack, on Brigade Staff.

Col. Jouett Henry, Comdg. 3rd Regiment.

THEY ROPED HIM IN.

And Thereby the Business Man Was Taught a Lesson.

The business man, who owns two dogs, made a call yesterday and today. Every Sunday he takes the dogs for a walk, and for fear that they may go astray he fastens them together with a stout rope. The little dog, he feels assured, will not lose the big dog, and he is quite positive that the big dog will not lose the little one. Of course if the big dog takes it into his head to run, he will be lost. In a certain direction, he is pretty apt to have his way. Luckily he is an easily persuaded animal, and the little dog by the exercise of some diplomacy gets fully as much fun out of these promenades as the big fellow.

Well, one of their friends were concluding luncheon with the master, and the master and the dogs were some distance ahead. The snow was drifted deep in places, and the master determined to turn and go back. He whistled for the dogs.

The big dog whirled around. He saw his master had stopped and instantly came up to him to bark. The master was taken by surprise and for a few moments could not regain his footing. When he did he put in some tall running. They came down on the master at a stiff gallop.

As they approached their speed increased, the little dog at the end of the rope running for dear life. Just as they reached the master he stopped, the little dog going around him to the right and the big dog to the left, the six feet of stout rope held taut between them.

When the master gathered himself out of the snow he saw the master, took his mouth and dusted him from his ears and rescued his hat and brushed off a little of the sticky mass, he started for home with one whining hand grasping the rope, the dogs demurely trotting along on either side.

Hereafter he will either shorten the rope, or else get behind a convenient tree the next time he whistles.—Cleve-land Plain Dealer.

Parsimonious.

"Never mind," say the lawyers to the malefactor of great wealth after the jury has found him guilty and the judge has imposed a sentence of him in a swathing vein—"Never mind, we can take an appeal in this case, and if it goes against us in the court of appeals we can get a writ of error and a habeas corpus and a mandamus and an injunction and so on until!"

"Excuse me, gentlemen," says the malefactor, "but I have been compelled to pay my fine and serve my sentence. I figure that your fees would be a great deal more than my time and money to pay the penalty are worth."

"Stingy!" his the lawyers, fling out and thinking bitter thoughts about the economical trait that have enabled their client to build up his fortune.—Chicago Post.

What Pat Said.

A woman fell from a ferryboat crossing over to Campden the other day, and a poor Irishman sprang over and rescued her. When she was safely landed on the deck her husband, who had been a calm spectator of the accident, handed the brave fellow a quarter.

Some of the bystanders expressing their indignation, Pat said: "Arrah, don't blame the gentleman—he knows best. Perhaps if I hadn't saved her he'd have given me a dollar."

Disillusionment.

The goals of life are rarely reached; The hopes of life are vain. I set about to get a watch And only got a chain. —Browning's Magazine.

Unimportant.

The captain of a certain yacht had evinced an anxiety touching a mishap to the craft that at once attracted the attention of a fair passenger on board. "What's the trouble, captain?" asked she.

"The fact is, ma'am," was the response, "our rudder's broken."

"Oh, I shouldn't worry about that," said the lady. "Being under the water nearly all the time, no one will notice that it's gone."—Harper's Weekly.

Inertia.

"Well," said Mr. Staylate for the fourth time, "I must be going."

"What a queer change," replied Miss Patience Gonne. "You're really quite stationary."—Philadelphia Press.

On Mayoral.

Mayne, trading an old book in which "it" looks like "it," This heroine is just perfectly tovey-baby, say, she must have lisp'd something awful.—Kansas City Times.

A Heavy Load to Carry

"ALL IS WELL THAT ENDS WELL."

Along with dyspepsia comes nervousness and general ill-health. Why? Because the body does not permit the food to be properly digested, and its products assimilated by the system. The result is a general debility, a partial debility with poisons which come from this disturbed digestion, and in turn the nerves become weak and the body becomes subject to dyspepsia and prescribed for me, and I have not been better. My wife advised me to stop taking the doctor's medicine. She bought me a bottle and we soon found that it did not help. I took the medicine again. I took on flesh, my stomach became perfectly better. I can never cease to be grateful to you for your wonderful medicine and I am certainly given it highest praise."

THE SECRET OUT.

To refute the many false and malicious statements published in the papers under untrue statements published by competing and disgruntled medicines, we call your attention to the following: Family Medicines the Doctor has decided to publish all the ingredients entering into his medicine. He has given to the public every bottle of this medicine leaving the great Laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y., the name and number of all the ingredients entering into the compound, printed in plain English.

These ORIGINAL Little Lives of R. V. Pierce over 20 years ago, have been much imitated but never equaled. They are more concentrated and refined medicinal and nutritious than any other medicine. The stomach is the vital organ of the body. If the stomach is "weak" the body will be weak

as well, because it is upon the stomach that the body relies for its strength.

And the body is composed of several members and organs, or the weakness of the body as a consequence of weak organs which compose the body. If the body is weak because it is ill-nourished that physical weakness will be equally distributed among the organs,

but the stomach will be immediately weak according to the amount of the reduction of their daily ration of nutrition.

By way of example take the case of the Assistant Treasurer of the Catholic

Forsters at Quebec, Mr. Louis Paris

who writes:

"After my health began to fail my head grew dizzy, eyes pained me, and my body was weak, and I could not eat. I could not digest my food, and I had to take medicine.

No man is stronger than his stomach.

Let the stomach be weak and the body will be weak, and the body will not be strong.

The stomach would soon fail. Physical strength is derived from food. If a man has a weak stomach he will be weak, and he will be weak

as well, because it is upon the stomach that the body relies for its strength.

THE BLACK BOTTLE.

Legend That Still Lives in New York's Bellevue Hospital.

The legend of the somber old pyle may pass with it, but the tradition of the "black bottle" will be handed down to curse the new. In the minds of the unenlightened this fiction of the past has become a fact, as firmly believed as the doctrine of a religion. The black bottle is the enthusiasm of the useless, the incurable or the troublesome. It is in the custody of the physician, the doctor, no less than the judge of life and death. Its contents are quietly dropped in the victim's food or drink, and he passes on to cumber the earth no longer. There is no appeal from the black bottle. Its existence is denied by all in authority. It does its work silently and surely. Horror of horrors! The bottle sometimes carries the hand of a spiteful nurse or attendant, and then let the trouble maker beware! Or perhaps the medical schools need new material for their dissecting rooms. Again the black bottle, and a plethora of subjects results.

A great many years ago the nursing in the institution was done by con- valescent patients, and by women from the workhouse and jails. Tradition says that in those days it was dangerous to be helpless in the wards with even the wealth of a few dollars. A little opium in the food, a pillow pressed down over the face or a knee squeezed into the throat, and it was all over. The legend of the black bottle may be the result of those days. Another tradition of Bellevue is to consider every man alcoholic until he is proved innocent. This tradition dates from 1735, when the hospital was "raised" where the city hall now stands, at the expense of fifty gallons of rum, paid for by the corporation.—Harper's Weekly.

Warning to Novelists.

In probability states the following that novelistic excerpts must hereafter be omitted:

"His spirits sank."

"Her beauty intoxicated him."

"As he stepped up he noticed that the ballroom was full."

"As he left the room her eyes filled up."

"She staggered and would have fallen but had a strong arm supported her."

"Her face was all lit up."

"His heart was too full for words."

"He led her to a dim corner of the ballroom, and when they came back both were smiling happily."

"He was a rum sort of a beggar."

etc.—Nashville Tennessean.

Charles I's Clock.

The mayor and corporation of Shrewsbury have recently had presented to them the scarlet cloak which was worn by Charles I. on the scaffold at Whitehall. The cloak was secured by William Walcot, who was a man of honor to the unhappy monarch and who was present on the scaffold at the time of his execution. The garment has been in the possession of the Walcot family for 260 years and was exhibited at the Society of Antiquaries in 1861. It is in a splendid state of preservation, and the Walcot family having presented it to the Shrewsbury town council, it is now on view in the town museum.—Dundee Advertiser.

Use Moonstones in Building.

It is estimated that more than 200,000 moonstones are carried away from Redondo beach every year, says the Los Angeles Express. Residents and visitors are allowed to lug them home in pockets and handkerchiefs, and of late have been loading the moonstones away by the wagon loads for building purposes. Protests have been made to the city trustees, but the traffic continues. Nor does the supply of pebbles that are said to be rich in moonstones and other gems seem in the least shortened. The never resting ocean washes them in day after day, as though a boundless wealth of them lies not somewhere in the deep.

Rest and Posture.

We stand and sit too much, according to the views of Dr. Giebke, expressed in a lecture recently delivered before a body of German physicians. Chairs may have been known to the ancients, but they did not sit in them on extraordinary occasions. Persons of culture as well as the barbarians took their meals and their rest reclining, discussing the subject Dr. Krueche of Munich, according to the London Globe, says that "to this day the primitive peoples prefer the reclining to the sitting posture, and that they lie not upon the back, but under the stomach, accounts for the better and more supple figures of these people."

The Collar Question.

One of the first signs of advancing years in men is the desire to have an easy and ample collar. Our humorists have dwelt on the subject in many places, but it is not to be taken seriously by the fact that during the past week two men living in the vicinity of New York have died of apoplexy when attempting to button tight collars. While the youth may choke himself if he will in order to be smart looking, let the average man of forty or fifty years be warned that collars and tight collars are not for him unless he chances to have a neck like an ostrich.—New York Evening World.

As a result of the premature explosion of a dynamite charge at Bas Isobipo, on the canal, about fifteen miles from Panama, ten men were killed, and more than fifty injured. A majority of the victims were Spaniards. The actual number of dead is not yet known, as it is believed several corpses are pinned under the wreckage.

The deal at Guthrie between General Manager Ewing and the Imperial Tobacco Company is still hanging fire. A Guthrie dispatch says: General Manager Ewing said the association was willing to sell, but the manner in which the Imperial company wanted to obtain the tobacco made it almost impossible to consummate the deal. In explaining the inexplicable tangle it would involve the association, one of the members of the association said: "The Planters Protective Association contains about 25,000 members and probably have over 100,000,000 pounds of tobacco in the pool of the 1908 crop. How to get the amount desired by the Imperial company from these members, equitably, in the loose deal, looks to be impossible. Some arrangements might be decided later, however, by which the Imperial company may buy the amount of tobacco they require."

There is more Catarrh in this section of country than all other diseases put together, and until the last year it was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, it became incurable. Science has now turned to her constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only company that has ever worked it. It takes a month to doses of 100 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Addressee, C. R. Clark & Co., Toledo, O., and by all Druggists, 75c a bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

versation after the congregation had been dismissed. Several will unite with this church and the names of others have been given to the other pastors of the city.

The overflowing congregation at inspired Mr. Wright to the finest sermon that he has preached thus far, on "Repentance." The context declares with startling plainness that death is an absolute certainty, though it may come in many forms. Come as it may, it must come to every man and every man must be prepared for it.

"Repentance is not sorrow for the consequences of sin. You may be sorry that your sin is to be punished when you have been found guilty but this is no proof that you are sorry for the sin itself. It is not shame at having been found out and disgraced, for had not the discovery and exposure never come you would still continue in your sins. It is not fear of death for even an earnest Christian may shrink from dying. Many a man deceives himself into thinking his repentance is sincere when the only feeling is one of fear to meet his God as he feels the approach of death. Death bed repentance is possible but its reality in most cases is not borne out by the facts.

"Repentance is the appreciation of the mercy of God which involves the realization that sin, in its real nature, is against God, and not merely against man, and also the appreciation of the love of Christ in dying for you. It means being sorry for the sin itself with such a sorrow that you will give it up no matter what it costs. If you are really repentant you will decide now to give up that you know is sinful, and so far as you are able, you will right every wrong that you have done. When you have done this you will find the peace of pardon and will know that your repentance is sincere.

Mr. Wright's preaching is the old fashioned kind that was so powerful in winning men in other days, a clear teaching of the great fact of sin and the certainty of hell, with the only hope of the soul in the blood of Christ. He goes to the heart of the matter and does not fail, with great tenderness, to speak plainly of the sins of the day. At the conclusion of his sermon he sang as a solo "Welcome Home."

Every day this week there will be services at 10:30 a. m., and 7 p. m. On Friday at a quarter before four there will be another meeting for young people. On Sunday at 3 p. m. there will be a men's meeting.

MOVE DOWN TOWN.

J. O. Cook, the Druggist, to Open Third Store.

The popular drug firm of Cook & Higgins will on January 1st open another store on the corner of Main street and Second avenue, in the Gish building. The store will in no sense interfere with the other stores, one near the court house and the other near the L. & N. depot. Lawton Faxon will have charge of the depot stand and Mr. Cook will himself conduct the downtown store. The room will be greatly improved and fitted up especially for its new occupants.

NEW ORGANIZATION

Put On Foot In The Farmers' Meeting Yesterday.

The meeting of "insurgent" tobacco members held at the court house yesterday was attended by about 400 men, but only about 100 appeared to be taking part. Resolutions were introduced by L. R. Davis criticising the management of the association and providing for the organization of a new loose association.

After speeches by Dr. J. D. Clardy against, and by John Feland and Esq. M. B. Brown for the resolutions, Esq. S. H. Myers offered to amend by memorializing the Planters' Association asking for sales from wagon deliveries by a system of grading, but this received no second and was not acted upon.

On motion L. R. Davis was elected president and B. F. Fuller vice president of the organization.

Both stated that they did not want to disrupt the Planters' Association, but wanted to sell their tobacco loose to avoid burdensome charges and long delays. Mr. Davis stated that he was seeking admission to the United-Association at the meeting in Louisville in January.

There was no bad feelings shown, John Feland's speech putting the crowd into a good humor.

AT SECOND WEDDING.
Bride Wears Same Gown and
On Anniversary of First.

Russell Armstrong, of Lebanon, Ind., and Mrs. Katie Harden, of Marion, Ind., were secretly married in Louisville on November 19 by a Magistrate, whose name is not given. The marriage was on the anniversary of a former one of the bride, who wore the same clothing she did on that occasion, and the same justice of the peace officiated, the hour being practically the same.

Strangely enough the two husband bear the same given name. On November 19, 1907, Russell Harden, of Lebanon, Ind., and Miss Katie Rohrer, of Marion, Ind., eloped to Louisville and were married. The union was an unhappy one and a divorce separated the pair in a few months. Mrs. Harden, as was up to her second marriage, was a telegraph operator at Richmond, Ind., when she became engaged over the wire to Armstrong, who held a like position at Cincinnati, the excuse of the bride being she desired to visit friends.

"Now you have hit it!" he exclaimed enthusiastically. "These are exactly like what mother used to make. How did you do it?"

"I will give you the recipe," replied the bride coldly.

"I have a special omelet recipe for you, cold storage cases, put alum in the flour and added chalk and water to the milk. Your mother lived here the pure food laws."

Cresses and Thieves. Several years after the close of the civil war a reception was held in Lynchburg, Va., to commemorate some national event. Many men were there assembled who had fought in the war. Among them was a major of a New England regiment, who, meeting General Lee, the leader of the Confederate army, cordially greeted him.

Pointing to his own decorations, the major said, "Ah, general, you see we are all the crosses now."

"Yes," replied the old general. "In olden times they hung thives on crosses. Now they hang crosses on thives."

A Feast For a Camel.

Theodore P. Roberts had a fluent command of language, both in speaking and writing, and was well liked by everybody. He could secure the attention of a negligent publisher if it was to be had. To such, who were anxious about sending vouchers, he once closed up a long letter with the sentence: "And, finally, my dear sir, permit me to say that it would be easier for a camel to ride into the kingdom of heaven on a velocipede than for any one to find a late copy of your paper in the city of New York!" FAIR: Historians of Stevens. Only two and a half miles southwest of Paris, Stevens is well known to tourists. Beautiful porcelain has been manufactured there since 1756, the royalties and republics which followed each other taking pains to have each period stamped on the back of every piece made. Inns, inns, the roads and often the saloons or what the service was designed were placed plainly on the plate. Thus in this silent but most eloquent way these frail historians indicate the changeable, brilliant story of their native land.—Exchange.

A Star or the Sun.

One of the stories that DIsraeli was accustomed to tell with the greatest relish was of an absentminded astronomer who, on a dark winter night, was much puzzled for which he tried to vain to account. For hours he sat profoundly studying the phenomenon and while he was thus engaged daylight arrived. After awhile the abstracted astronomer started to bed, telling himself firmly that if he remained out of bed much longer he would miss his night's rest.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure such ills.

Mr. A. T. Lee, living two miles from Elkhorn, Ky., says: "Kidney disease had rendered me practically helpless and I could not turn over in bed without assistance. My back was racked with agonizing pains and I scarcely had enough strength to move. The kidney secretions were irregular in action, and at times very unnatural in appearance. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills so highly advertised, my husband procured a box for me and I used them. The first dose gave me relief, and as I continued using them I steadily improved until I was made as well and strong as I had ever been."

Once upon a time De Wolfe Hopper met a Boston person in that town whom he had not seen for a long period of duration.

"Hello! How are you? Where have you been?" said Hopper in his hearty way, giving the Boston pronunciation of the word "been."

"Please don't say 'been,' but 'been,'" pleaded the Boston person plaintively.

"Sorry, but I can't," pleaded the big fellow. "I never had a bean in my mouth in my life, not even in Boston."

AMUSEMENTS.

BITTERLY RESENTED

Is the Story That Blakeley Collins Was the Aggressor.

THE MIDNIGHT FLYER.
There has been a dramatic event excited the wide and deep interest that has been shown in Ed Anderson's big scenic production, "The Midnight Flyer." Seldom, if ever, has a stage offering received such superlative praise from the newspapers, press and such attention from ecclesiastical publications. Not only have all classes of theatre-goers been attracted by "The Midnight Flyer," but all other circles have patronized and endorsed it. The Grand Illuminated Scene, "The Storm at Sea," "The Realistic Shipwreck," "The Adirondack Mountains in Winter," and "The Thrilling Railroad Scene" are some of the scenic effects that are to be seen in this big production. The play as staged by Mr. Anderson and the supporting company is of high excellence always seen in productions given by this well known and popular manager. Every piece of scenery that is carried for this great play will positively be used. The engagement is for one night only and will be at Holland's Opera House on Dec. 15.

CHARLEY GRAPEWIN IN "MR. PIPP."
Is heralded to appear at Holland's Opera House next Thursday night, Dec. 17.

If straw show which way the wind blows, then Charley Grapewin and his play must be swimming, swimming along on the apex of a tidal wave of complimentary notices. Here are a few sample straws:

"A powerful antidote for the blues is the side splitting and melodious farce, 'The Awakening of Mr. Pipp,' which opened for a week at the Globe Theatre last night. An audience limited only by the capacity of the house gave abundant and incessant evidence of keen enjoyment."

ON DEPOT MATTERS

Committee to Hold Conference in Louisville Today.

The story that Blakeley Collins was fatally shot by a negro named Chas. Coleman on Dec. 7, was in any sense the aggressor, is strongly resented by the friends of the young man who was killed.

Esq. F. L. Fraser, of Lafayette, wishes the Kentuckian to state that he holds himself personally responsible for the statement that whoever started the report that Collins was advancing upon the negro uttered a malicious lie.

Esq. Fraser reiterates the first version of the tragedy, that the boy was attending to his own business and was attacked and murdered by Coleman.

Other evidence was learned yesterday to bear out the first version given as the correct one. The boy's sister was the only eyewitness and she saw the negro fire the third shot after the boy fell to the ground, it is also said that a woman at Mr. J. R. Caudle's when she heard the shots told Mr. Caudle to go over there as Blakeley Collins was probably shot.

The killing from all that can be learned was undoubtedly an unprovoked assa.

There are many people who suffer from backache, rheumatism, lameness and similar ailments who are not aware these are symptoms of kidney trouble. Pineapples for the kidneys act as a tonic and regulator to kidneys and bladder and purify the blood. 30 days' trial $1. Sold by Anderson-Fowler Drug Co. Incorporated.

Horrible Outrage.
A horrible outrage and murder was perpetrated in Russell county, near Russell Springs, Mamie Womac a white girl, about thirteen years old, a daughter of Logan Womac, was returning home from school and when within about two hundred and fifty yards of her home she was caught by unknown persons, assaulted and then murdered. Her head was beat into pulp with stones.

SIXTH ROMANCE

Of the Night Rider Campaign In Black Patch.

A committee of city officials and citizens left for Louisville last night to confer with President M. H. Smith, of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Co., relative to the building of a new passenger station in this city. A petition was recently forwarded to Mr. Smith and a conference arranged for this morning. The committee consists of Mayor Chas. M. Meacham and Councilmen Jno. B. Galbreath and L. H. Davis, and Messrs. E. B. Long, T. C. Underwood and R. E. Cooper. They will return to-night.

About six weeks ago, before the negotiations were begun with Mr. Smith, a petition signed by many citizens was sent to the Railroad Commission calling attention to the inadequate depot facilities of both the L. & N. and I. C. railroads in this city, and the matter is also being looked into by the Railroad Commission.
